Description

On clean installs (empty databases) of TW 1.10 and 1.9.11 (also tested and confirmed on the clean 1.9.11 install on opensourcecms.com).

After users (perms tiki_p_create_blogs and tiki_p_blog_post enabled) create a blog they can proceed to post to any other user's blog. More precisely, on the post blog page, a user can select all blogs from the "Blog" field it seems that the function `user_has_perm_on_object` in `tikilib.php` (called by the `list_blogs_user_can_post` function) returns true for all blogs. It seems to me that `user_has_perm_on_object` either confuses the permission levels of `tiki_p_blog_post` or it simply doesn't check whether the blog has been marked as private or not.

Solution

A quick work around (which completely bypasses `user_has_perm_on_object` so is probably poses a bunch of security risk):

in the file tikilib.php

in the function function list_blogs_user_can_post

Replace

if( $this->user_has_perm_on_object($user, $res'blogId', 'blog', 'tiki_p_blog_post',0)){

with

```
if( $user $res'user' || $res'public' 'y'){
```

```
////////////////////
```

```
fixed in tikitrunk(3.0)
```

```
commit 13737 + 13736
