Description

With the prefs.feature_blog_heading perm enabled and tiki_p_edit_templates dissabled, users - with the perm to create blogs - will be able to create blogs but no heading will be shown when their blogs are viewed in tiki-view_blog.php.

In essence, unless both above named perms/prefs are enabled a user won't be able to create a heading, and no heading will be saved in DB for the blog.

And since the conditional to handle situations when $heading is empty has been removed in rev 9146 the blog will show no heading what so ever when it is viewed.

Solution

I suggest to re-instate the changes made to the conditional which displays the default heading if the user is not able to create his/her own headings.

I also think we should re-consider whether tiki_p_edit_templates should be tied to the creation of custom headings...

Suggested change:

In the file templates/tiki-view_blog.tpl

Replace

```
{eval var=$heading}

with

```
{if strlen($heading) > 0}
{eval var=$heading}
```

```
{else}
missing page for plugin INCLUDE

{/if}
```

This conditional will handle situations when the user does not have a custom heading - in which case it will display the default heading.
