Description
	When watching wiki pages, the first part of the notification email is just the diff, and them you can a full copy of the wiki page. So you can quickly see what changed and still have a full copy if needed.

	In the tracker notification email, it should be the same principle.

	As of now, it lists everything, and indicates new/old values, when appropriate. So we need to scroll all the way down and be very attentive to see what changed.

	The same old/new interface should be used in Version history for trackers
