Description

When attaching a document to a wiki-page, for example an MS-Word file, this attachment seems not to be indexed. There's also no option to indicate which handlers for different mime-types to use. This option is available when using file-galery, but not for page attachments.
As a result the file will never show up in any search results.
Furthermore: it would be convenient to be able to indicate that the indexing of attachments should be logged. This would ease system debugging in the case mentioned.
