Description

Steps:

1. Dump MYSQL tikiwiki 3.3 database (lets call "sql33")
2. Create a new environment where put tikiwiki 4.0 files
3. Import the dumped "sql33" into new sql db (lets call "sql40") through command line
4. Start the configurator of tikiwiki 4.0 and use the upgrade db feature.
5. Try to access the new tikiwiki 4.0 installation:

RESULT: Noone user can access the site. The admin also cannot access the site.

6. Try to reset the admin password:

```
UPDATE `users_users` SET `password`='admin', `hash`=md5('admin') WHERE `login`='admin';
```

RESULT: The admin cannot access the site.

During the db upgrade some warning happened, but nothing related with the problem above, I think.

I nevertheless post the messages:

```
INSERT INTO `tiki_menu_options` (`optionId`, `menuId`, `type`, `name`, `url`, `position`, `section`, `perm`, `groupname`, `userlevel`) VALUES (107,42,'s','Newsletters','tiki-newsletters.php',900,'feature_newsletters','tiki_p_list_newsletters','',0)
```

Duplicate entry '107' for key 1

-- 2009-09-18 lphuberdeau

```
ALTER TABLE `tiki_transitions` ADD COLUMN guards TEXT NOT NULL DEFAULT '[]'
```

BLOB/TEXT column 'guards' can't have a default value

```
UPDATE `users_objectpermissions` SET `permName`= ? WHERE `permName`= ?
```

Duplicate entry 'ef988117becd8cd60924ff5b97c73e43-category-Registered-tiki_p_view' for key 1

Hi Trincio: see the comments this similar bug report got here:

<http://dev.tikiwiki.org/bug2865>

And if possible, check first if a similar bug has been reported. Thanks!

Obviously I looked for similar bug report but I didn't find it. Now I closed the issue, linking to the other one in title. I should like to show that the problem isn't closed related with the other error bug error quote, but with the final part of my error quote, in the `users_objectpermissions` table. I'll post a workaround on the other errorbug report.
