Description

Hi,

After a version upgrade (any data transfer etc...), if a dir containing gallery is forgotten in the new installation (nothing is perfect), it seems that there is no check when the gallery is loaded, this can (most of time) crash Apache.

nota : I have not tested for "files" only for "images" but I put it into the categories before I imagine that the problem exists on both.

Checked on 6.x and 7.1

Solution

- 1- Check the dir existence before trying to access it. (an option can be to test the dir existence at the display of list of galleries and put a flag for the gallery into the list)
- 2- When loading check again and send a message which allows either :
 - 1- cancel (the administrator will do the necessary), then put a flag in gallery list
 - 2- goto or invite to "gallery parameters" if admin is logged to change the dir
- 3- rebuild the gallery (data organization can be lost but not elementary components) :
 - keep the list of file and data but invite to (flag) and allow to reload the image or file.

This is a todo__ (I have no time to do it)
