Description
I migrated my Tiki 2.x to Tiki 6.6 this weekend. Formerly I have configured permissions for specific groups by defining a category and granting tiki_p_view_categorized permission for the category to a group. So it was able to add for example the category "top secret" to an article and just let those users (groups) see the article that had permission tiki_p_view_categorized for this category. Now everyone can see everything because those permissions are obsolete. But how do I configure this then to hide all those categorized items from other users? Meanwhile I noticed that the problem only occurs in articles. Wiki pages and so on are doing fine. Can this be a bug, or is there a special configuration required?

This is the configuration (special permissions for the category are set just for the group "Mitglied"):

Comments
Go to tiki-admin_categories.php

Find your category, click on the permissions key icon.

In the cms section for permissions, assign the permission Can read articles (tiki_p_read_article) to the relevant group.

ex.: remove from anonymous, add to group XYZ
