Description
In the Properties tab of the Wiki edit screen (either standard wiki editor or wysiwyg) there is an option to Import the content of wiki page that has previously been exported (needs some Wiki options set to see these)

The export process works fine producing a text file with a special header area then the content which is in wiki syntax for the normal editor or html when using the (full) wysiwyg editor (not tested the wiki syntax wysiwyg option)

To import the page you simply browse to the file and then save the page - which used to import the content at that point.

However now (22 Aug 2013) in 11.x and trunk nothing happens and the page remains empty. It used to work Ok at some point probably version 6 or perhaps earlier?

Solution
Import wikipage feature is now working. Please check this commit id: 48202

OK - have now made a small additional commit id: 48483 to update tiki-editpage.tpl so that usage of this feature is clearer

I tried to reproduce but the UI seems off. I select the file from my computer but I don't see an Import button. Are you support to just click on SAVE? Is that how it worked before? Do you remember what version is use to work on?

thanks

Pascal - as it says in the bug description, yes you just 'Save' the page and at that point the import used to happen. I can't remember which version it used to work in - probably 6 although it might have been 3
