Description
    Users should be able to edit the calendar item data they submitted.

    Ex.: An event is added, but a few days later, the description of the event is improved.

    It could be a permission or just a setting for the calendar.

    Watch event would be nice so we could have some sort of tracking.

As per Tiki23 and testing on next.t.o different users from different groups were able to re-edit their events. May be the idea is to have, like we have in the trackers, as specific can view/edit own items. In this case it is possible to simply user tracker calendar and then use this permissions (can edit own items).

If this is not the idea please add information.
