Description

//Update:

//The issue seems not to be a bug, as I cannot at all reproduce an show.tiki.org, where the behaviour is unexpectedly expected ;-)

//Closing for now

In a collaboration platform I use different workgroups. Each workgroup should have an individual home page with group specific information.

For a perspective (example name: proceedings Id: 14) I set up a wiki page as home page (example: page name: "p14") and set th wiki home page to p14 instead of HomePage.

When I switch from any other perspective (or default) to this perspective, the user should be referred to the page "p14". Instead he is referred to the standard HomePage like in default.

Altering the Home feature (for example from wiki to articles) in the perspective 14 has no effect. But altering the Home feature globally overwrites the setting in the perspective.

This behaviour seems to be somehow a partial deactivation of perspectives overwriting.
The effect is not for all preferences - for example perspective-individual themes work.

At first now I try to reproduce on show.t.o
