Description

In a wiki page set an img plugin, choose, image from gallery (file), upload an image, save.
Back on the page click on the "edit plugin" icon.
File ID, click on the "image" link (picture selector) or change by hand the File ID.
Click submit, nothing change.

It took me hard time to reproduce but you got it here :

It seems it is something to do with the hebrew text in the fancylist.

Hi Bernard Sfez,

The problem here is using the imgplugin inside the lang plugin (the plugin works only with lang="en"), so any language other than english can't parse the plugin syntax.(not only imgPlugin , but also all wiki plugin will not work inside the lang).

Here the reason for inline edit for the imgplugin not working is because, when you take a closer look, you actually used the imgplugin at 2 places, one inside the hebrew lang and another at last(where the inline edit not working), it actually working when you tried inline editing but the problem is it's get saved at the wrong place(the changes occuring at the 1st place i.e inside the hebrew lang).

Thanks.
