Description
	Global permissions:

	tiki_p_assign_perm_file_gallery
	tiki_p_admin_file_galleries
	all groups = OFF

	Created users "A" and "B"
	Created group "GroupA" of which "A" is a member Created group "GroupB" of which "B" is a member

	Created category "UserACat" Permissions for category "UserACat":

	tiki_p_add_object
	GroupA = ON GroupB = OFF
	tiki_p_remove_object
	GroupA = ON GroupB = OFF
	tiki_p_modify_object_categories
	GroupA = ON
	GroupB = OFF

	With these settings, "A cannot set the category of the gallery because that is done by selecting the "Edit Gallery" button, which is not activated. To activate this:

tiki_p_admin_file_galleries
GroupA = ON GroupB = OFF

Now the "Edit Gallery" is activated, but so is the "Permissions" button, despite the fact that tiki_p_assign_perm_file_gallery is OFF

Update:
In the tiki show instance, when the user clicks the Permission button, it says the user does not have permission to set permissions. I do not get this message in my actual tiki installation - the user can set permissions. I'll investigate further. However, if they don't have permission, I think the button should not be there.

Update:
Attempted workaround by setting "GroupACat" for the "Default category assigned to uncategorized objects edited by a user with this default group" option for "GroupA".

I presumed that every forum post, every file uploaded, every "everything else" would be categorized. That seems excessive, and would create a lot of garbage in the database. I do what this for new file galleries created by user "A". However, when the user creates a new file gallery, it is not assigned "UserACat". So this approach will not work.
