- ✕ Easy way to compare configuration of 2 Tiki sites
- ✕ Easy way to compare configuration of 2 Tiki sites

Description

Doing this manually is error-prone and time consuming.

make compare should compare two sites and report at least:

- Differences in PHP version
 - Seeing a diff of tiki-check.php output would be fantastic as well to see anything risky if the two Tikis are on different servers.
- Differences in the data
 - in database (presumably text diff of mysqldump)
 - files on disk outside web area)
- Differences in the code base

So one could iteratively manually cherry-pick merge stuff from dev/staging to production, and re-run diff until there is nothing else one cares to keep. And then, use the "copy prod to dev" script.

This is useful for Configuration Management for Tiki Projects
