Description
    So, i am encountering this error while running setup.sh on Bluehost shared environment.

    PHP 5.2, 5.4 & 5.6 are installed and available for my use.

    Currently PHP Version 5.6.17 is the default php version (confirmed with phpinfo), which has been set by an apache set-handler in the .htaccess.

    After many attempts to modify setup.sh, I managed to by pass the warning by manually changing the php calls to php56s (my local php5.6). Now I get a error with composer saying that it should be run with the command line version of php. This has clearly gone past my expertise. Help please!

    I have set this as a bug as I have met the requirements outlined and have followed the documentation here: https://dev.tiki.org/Get+code

    I have solved the issue on bluest shared environments. I wrote a little tutorial on how to fix it located on the Bluehost page.

    I updated the Get code page, so if one reads and follows the whole, thing, it will eventually lead to the Bluehost page.
