Description

As evidenced inside the doc.tiki.org/Plugin+Alias page, the ~ tc ~ (tiki comment) is being processed inside the {CODE()} plugin and the ~ np ~ tag syntax. Noticed on 24 Jun 2017 with doc.tiki.org/Page+Alias using 16.3svn. Temporarily edited page to make example visible inside {CODE()} section; edit which should be undone when bug fixed. Did not edit or attempt to temporarily correct the issue also existing for inline ~ np ~ use in the 2nd paragraph following the {CODE()} example.

(first time bug submitter here. Edit report as appropriate to bring into standards or delete if not appropriate at all. Marked as regression figuring it is likely an unreleased bug introduced and not caught during regression testing as of yet. As this dev.tiki.org site using the same version, not sure I can properly report the problem — a recursive dog food problem — as I cannot preview my description that needs ~ np ~ to work?)

Workaround

Sorry it took several years, but hopefully this is now fixed in trunk by 1121473b and 9ebb2c46 hopefully - will backport to 21.x soon if safe

Hi RandyH

That seems great as a bug report, we're pretty relaxed about these things here! 😊

The fix might be a little trickier to do, i guess we need to find out if it's happening in 17.x and fix it there first, would be nice to have it working properly for 17.0 (out soon!)
