Description

The auto-TOC implementation does not know how to deal with advanced titles. When titles contain plugin calls, since the links can't contain HTML, auto-TOC just strips HTML tags (see the declaration of `aText` in `autoToc.js` (`var aText = $.trim($this.text());`), which may or may not give a valid result. For example, with the following heading:

! The mind behind $e=mc^2$

...the TOC entry would just display a raw "The mind behind $e=mc^2$ ", with nothing in superscript, which - of course - is mathematically highly invalid.

This bug is similar to Automatic table of contents (auto-TOC) shows calls to FOOTNOTE plugin as regular text without link, but about the SUP plugin instead of FOOTNOTE.

Solution

This could be solved by excluding the SUP HTML tag from stripped tags, but unlike PHP's `strip_tags()`, `.text()` does not allow excluding tags.

Workaround

`maketoc` shows the title's HTML unaltered, which is the right thing to do in SUP's case.
