Description

composer.lock needs to updated

- when composer.json is updated
- to get updates on any of our 100+ dependencies

Tiki developers sometimes waste time with this. Let's automate.

It should be ran with the right version of PHP (the lowest supported for that Tiki version)

Also, each branch needs to be run independently (you shouldn't merge the results of one branch in another). So this should be excluded from the script at Semi-automatic merging period

We need a robot SourceForge user name. Ex: tikicibot

One example: (up for discussion):

1. Check all changes on composer.json and update immediately composer.lock (because a dev working on something likely wants to see immediate results)

2. Update composer.lock every 10 days on supported branches. So we get somewhat frequent updates. Since composer.json is set for semantic versioning, it should not cause regressions.

Also, there is some weirdness where the composer.tiki.org URLs are changed to the external sources like Github.

This automation should keep everything on composer.tiki.org

This should also be done by the release script
