Description

Using the Mouseover plugin, the popup content displays at/near the top of the page rather than at the position of the pointer. See on <https://tiki.org/Versions> (find in page: "which is the highest you can upgrade to if you have Win XP" or "IE 10 note"). This is especially problematic on long pages like "Versions" because the top of the page is out of the viewport, so the user doesn't even realize the mouseover popup opened unless they scroll back to the top for some reason. I checked with a couple of browsers.

Solution

Needs to be fixed or changed to Bootstrap4 pop-over.

the plugin didnt seem to work correctly inside a table. 'top' and 'left' values were off.
committed to 21x and trunk

Thank you for that !

I've been experiencing this problem as well - in my case, I am using it with a wiki tpl.
Additionally, one of the pop-ups goes crazy - when hovering over it, it just keeps opening and closing repeatedly! The only difference I can see from the other ones that partially work correctly (open and stay open, in the top left corner of the page) is that it has a significant amount of text (40+ lines), plus wiki page markup.

Looking forward to a fix, thanks!
