Description

When you have more than one version of an image in the file gallery (via the update mechanism) you get an additional property: Archive.

When you select that, you get this images individual archive displayed. All images have the standard properties, and among them is "delete" to delete the image. That works as it should.

But also each and every image gets a checkbox, and underneath the listing, you can perform some task on a set of images collectively (all that got a check in the checkbox).

Among those task is again "delete".

But when you check some archived images and select a collective delete, this will be completely ignored. You do not even get the normal confirmation dialog. Also, no error message. It just does nothing at all. Whatever you had selected stays selected. And this is independent from permission, the same happens to the admin, when he or she wants to delete a selection of images.

As I said before, individual deletion works as it should, so it's probably "only" a problem of the collective delete algorithm.

Thanks

Hman

Seems to be broken in newer versions also:

FYI, it has been fixed and working fine on Tiki25
