Description

Yet another bug with the strange layout of the calendar feature. I created one event, that spans several days, each of them for the whole of that day. On all days this event is painted at the top of day, in the view that you get when you click on the event in module (that I placed left). All of them.

Except for the very first. Seemingly because of no reason at all it appears vertically centered... See attachment.

Thanks

Also, there is no way to edit an event?? Permissions are set that a registered user, as well as admins, have the rights to edit and manage calendars, but event, once entered, cannot be edited. There is no tools icon, and when you click on the event, only the monster mouseover appears that shows some source code ?! Even the admin has no way to edit an event... `tiki_p_change_events` is set for registered users, and this is true both on the global and on the object permissions...

I don't have a Tiki 18 site to test with at the moment, but at a site running Tiki 21, there is no problem editing an event. I click on the event name in the calendar and the event create/edit screen appears in a modal window, just for your information.

Unfortunately demo 1 is broken, so I cannot demonstrate this on show.tiki. But I could make a screenshot. Calendar seems to be broken in more than one respect, though... Screenshot attached.

The Calendar plugin does not show a navigation bar, even if instructed to so, when you select just one week.

Syntax (brackets omitted): `calendar calIds="1" viewmode="week" viewlist="list" viewnavbar="y" withviewevents="0"`

Another peculiarity: Changing the display mode in the main window also changes the display mode in the module, which results in extremely loooooong left panel when choosing list mode. See attachment #3. Display modes should be independent.
