Description

When you go to Products (the main shop) and click on a product, you get the products's page (Product), but that does not have a backlink to Products. Ideally it should backlink to the Products page that lead there (could be paginated), but a generic backlink to Products would be sufficient. This breaks the user experience that the backlink arrow leads back to all pages that linked to the current one. The browser's back button, of course, still works.
