Description
Enable multilingual, create a tracker create a text field and set it as mandatory.
You can't save without filling the field. (good and normal)

Turn the field to multilingual and dont set title for other language.
You can't save an item anymore.

While they can be a discussion about the logic, having a title in every language used in that case shouldn't be mandatory and one should be use as default when other don't exist.

I remember it was once useable, if you had at least one field with a value it was good enough to allow saving.

You can't save an item with only one language title

Solution
User should be allowed to save with a warning that missing title is bad.
First title found (or english if found) should be use in the meantime.
