Description
    I am using TikiWiki as a community "news/info" website. Part of this project will be to interview local people, government officials. Specifically, I will be inviting the Elderly in on weekends to share their life stories.

    I need a tikiwiki feature similar to picture gallery or file gallery that can handle "media" in general.
    The audio and video recordings are hosted on a streaming server, so the entry would not necessarily be a file, but could also be a LINK to the location, eg:
    mms://www.milescityvoice.com/2007JUL04Parade.asf

    I Could someone help develop a "MultiMedia" gallery feature?
    Then i could write up the person's story as a tiki page, and embed the video or audio (or anything else) just like we insert images with the img tag.

    I have successfully embedded the media with the URL directly, but I wanted a searchable gallery that can categorize as well to make the process more user friendly.

    Thanks,

    Eric

If all you want is a searchable list of links (since your media files are hosted elseswhere), just use the Directory feature. You can create categories/sub-directories to help manage the links. You can add full text descriptions that are searchable, too.

As per Tiki23 you can store your media in the Tiki file gallery and reuse (display) the media on a Wiki page.
