I had the same problem with Tikiwiki v3.1 where GD was installed but without the php-gd library ;

The problem was resolved by installing the php-gd :

1-/ On Fedora :

```
yum install php-gd"
```

```
service httpd restart
2-/ On Debian-Ubuntu :
sudo apt-get install php5-gd
sudo /etc/init.d/apache2 restart
```

This should really be in the installer when we test for the presence of GD, Tiki should attempt to create the sample image, too, and report to user.

Will add a simple test:

```
$im = @imagecreate(110, 20);
if ($im) {
$smarty->assign('sample_image', 'y');
imagedestroy($im);
} else{
$smarty->assign('sample_image', 'n');
}
```

As per Tiki23 we test GD and Imagik on install
