Description
    Hello Friends,

    I am not a technical person. After I installed latest version of TikiWiki using Fantastico I went to Admin Area and when I finished some modifications in Login Configuration Page I was suddenly kicked out (logged out) but even after several tries I was not able to login again.

    Because of this problem I removed my site: http://hub.cc completely. I downloaded the latest version from site: www.tikiwiki.org and re-installed it using my FTP clients. But unfortunately once again faced the same problem.

    I therefore request you to please check my site and guide to me how can I Debug this issue!

    Many thanks and best regards

    Kamaal Makrani

This is the second time this has happened to me. I've just spent about 3 hours getting everything configured and all the sudden I cannot login. No errors. It keeps taking me back to the home page. The time before I spent half a night getting it setup and then I could no longer login to my site.

It looks like one of the options is conflicting.

Does this help get logged in again?

The forum post fixed the problem for me.

I had something similar happen. I went into the users_users table and set "valid" to NULL. Then I turned off the admin and email validation. Log in is now working again.

See if that doesn't do it for you as well. Once you get your users logging in again, then you can turn the validation back on. Use their user name to send them a "reset password" from the log in screen.

If you change the way sessions are stored, and your authentication is linked to that it is inevitable (or at least reasonable, i think) that you will be logged out if you change it.
I think the problems people have reported here about not getting back in are coincidental, or at least we couldn't reproduce that (other than by "forgetting" the admin password).

I think we should add some warnings to the 'Store session data in database' checkbox, make 'forgotPass' default to on for 3.0, and have a big warnings if this is switched off next to any settings that effect logging in?
