I point out that both deletion and archiving options are needed. Some kinds of articles can be deleted permanently, while others should be archived (publicly or privately). Probably both an "archive date" (no longer published) and a "delete date" (delete from database) are needed. For example, an "On this day in history" article might be published for one day, in a publicly visible archive (maybe simply "List of articles") for a month, and never deleted (will be reused in a year). The example of a classified ad may need permanent deletion (perhaps after a non-public archive period in case review or reposting are needed).
