Description

In 1.10 now we can set to login as e-mail and display realname wherever possible. But the user wiki page by default is set to 'UserCreate<e-mail>'. We should still allow user to create his page with 'UserCreate<username/real name>'.

The recommended behaviour should be if user chooses e-mail to be private or it could be if admin sets to display realname wherever possible, then it should use 'UserCreate<realname>' other cases it can be based on e-mail.

This feature request is not outdated but a valid one, still. Amazed it was requested so long ago, and still not implemented (maybe not so many people using email as login AND user pages?)
