Description

When a user activates a theme in "My Tiki", he is unable to go back either to default site theme or to another one. The new profile is active during the user session, but once he logs off and on again, he stays with the first chosen profile.

This problem exists on this site.

Solution

It is related with intertiki which is running on this site. The user can change his theme but it is only for the current session. If the value has to be permanent, it has to be changed on the master intertiki.

It's a user interface bug. Tiki should have one of these behaviors:

- tell the user that this setting is only for the session,
- forbid the changes of these settings (and tell why),
- store the settings on the master intertiki (and give the info that this setting is now shared with all the tiki's in this intertiki).
