Description

current strikethrough syntax

```
{TAG(tag=>strike)}texte{TAG}

Suggested one for us:

~~strike~~

As suggested in wikicreole:

<http://www.wikicreole.org/wiki/Strike>

All wiki engines:

<http://www.wikimatrix.org/syntax.php?i=27>

This is very useful when using wiki pages for project management

Solution

Done in tw3.0 trunk

But the current fix has quite a few collisions. People use double hyphens to highlight things in a long sentence. But they use spaces.

Another collision when using — for arrows

<http://doc.tikiwiki.org/tiki-pagehistory.php?page=TikiTests&preview=15>

So we could do:

--strike--

-- no strike --

Use del tag instead !

{TAG(tag=>del)}text{TAG}

del tag doesn't seem as intuitive as a strike tag...doubt I'd think to search for delete or del or something when looking for something to strike out a word.

+1 for strike tag +1 for ~~strike~~

good idea, specially if this is adopted by Wiki Creole

I am re-opening this issue and I suggest some changes.

It often happens that people put two consecutive hyphens (--) after and before some text that want to highlight.

~~strike~~

-- no strike --
