Description

After upgrading from 1.9.11 to 2.0 an error occurs with a missing field (email_confirm) when trying to add a new user as summarised at the end of this post. This seems to be repeatable across several sites that I have upgraded from 1.9.11 so I am assuming something wrong with the upgrade script. Have checked the database using phpMyAdmin and whilst the field is present on a brand new install it is consistently missing in all the upgrades. Manually adding the field from phpMyAdmin rectifies the problem.

Would be very useful to have the full 2.0 data structure documented since I am seeing inconsistencies between the the number of tables in an upgraded site versus a new 2.0 site (upgrade had more tables) - some sort of test utility to validate the data structure would also be very very useful.

SOLution if you may discover the same ...
with mysql drop the line:

ALTER TABLE users_users ADD email_confirm int(14) default NULL AFTER pass_confirm;
```

Hello,

Did you do a real upgrade (code and database) as explained here:

<http://doc.tikiwiki.org/tiki-index.php?page=Upgrade+1.9.x+to+2.0.y&bl=y> ? The missing field is added in db upgrade script (/db/tiki_1.9to2.0.sql). So, it's strange that this field is missing for (at least) 2 tw's.... Maybe there's a problem with the upgrade script. Please test and come back to this bug list.

Upgrade was done on BlueHost server using Fantastico.
It would appear Fantastico didn't use all the scripts.

even though i was using v2.4, I run again the 1.9 to 2.0 script again which fixed the missing column.
