In case you missed it ...

We wanted to be sure you were aware of some upcoming changes to the SourceForge project hosting service.

One or more of your projects use the Hosted Apps service. On September 1, 2012, the Hosted Apps service will reach the end of its life and be shut down. The reasons for this are discussed in the blog post, at <http://sourceforge.net/blog/hosted-apps-retirement/> and in the wiki, at <https://sourceforge.net/p/forgem/communit-1/docs/Hosted%20Apps%20Retirement/>

Over the coming days, we'll be publishing more documents about how to migrate your apps to your own project web space, so that none of your data is lost in this transition. We want to be sure that your project can continue to operate without interruption, so if you have any concerns, difficulty with migration, or just want to chat, please send us a note.

Please watch the wiki page (<https://sourceforge.net/p/forgem/communit-1/docs/Hosted%20Apps%20Retirement/>) for further updates about this process. We'll be back in touch as it gets closer to the deadline, or if anything about the plan changes.

Thanks again for being part of the SourceForge community.
