Description

I know that calendars can be watched by users through links like:

tiki-calendar.php?watch_event=calendar_changed&watch_action=add

But this link doesn't work like this other one:

http://info.tikiwiki.org/tiki-user_watches.php?event=article_submitted&add=Add

I mean, Anonymous users clicking on the first link (calendar watch event, as it is right now), would not be offered any message to login or register first.

With the second link (watch article), the user will be shown the login box to login first, before the action can be executed.

This is to make more easy for new users to know that they can subscribe by email to get info from calendars if they register to that tiki site.
