Description

I installed a tiki3.3 on a server (pangea.org) with no remarkable issues, and the tikis seem to work fine:

<http://d-recerca.org>

However, I attempted to install a spare tiki4.0 for testing on the same server, and I can't install it:

<http://xavidp.pangea.org/tiki40/>

I guess the server doesn't have pdo installed. I added the line in local.php to force tiki to use adodb instead (copied from tw.o forums, message from sylvie). With this change I can go a bit further, but I cannot finish the installation process. After the sql are run, I'm sent to the authentication page of tiki-install.php, instead of to the step of locking the installer and proceeding to tiki.

I went to the tiki-index.php then. and I could see it, and changed password for admin. But I can't login after that step neither with admin admin or with new admin pass..

Solution

It was a problem at the server side, they were missing some packages related to php-adodb (at least)

They installed them, and nowadays it works as expected. Great!

because it should work with the adodb which is bundled with tiki, no extra external libs should be necessary
