Description

1. Create a new thread and type in a few words
2. press PREVIEW to verify and press SAVE after that.
3. verify that posting went well
4. now reply to this initial posting by typing a few words and press PREVIEW to see that preview works fine
5. now press SAVE and get the error message __

Notice: this variable may not be empty: $_POST%22thread_sort_mode%22__

1. wiki-button "back" leads to another error message saying "no thread" or something like that (I can only see the german text "Kein Thread").
2. to see and capture the text of your reply to your clipboard you need to press the back button of your browser
3. now reply again to the initial posting, paste in the content of your clipboard and immediatelly press SAVE (without PREVIEW)
4. see that saving your reply is fine

When logged in as a regular user this procedure applies and shows errors. When logged in as admin save after preview is fine.

I also have this problem.
Using TikiWiki 4.0.

This forum post deals with the same issue

I have exactly the same problem using TikiWiki 4.1.

This bug is quite confusing for forum users, as the text they just wrote is discarded and lost.

Is there a workaround ?

Thanks

This just happens with normal user but not with admin users. Please fix it asap!

Is there a way to disable the preview functionality?

hansnouwens 05 Mar 10 15:28 GMT-0000

change line 292 in comments.tpl to this dirty quick hack.
Don't forget to flush the smarty cache!
{if $thread_sort_mode eq ''}

{else}

{/if}

hansnouwens 05 Mar 10 15:29 GMT-0000

the missing lines state the html code to set the variable to a fixed value such as "commentDate_asc"
The else is the original line.
