Description

TW5.0beta1

Tried a field($fieldid,user,$trackerid) expression, and it does not work if the $fieldid is of item link type.

Debug insight:

While field($fieldid,user,$trackerid) results in the unresolved itemid referencing to the item link domain, the

$items = $trklib->list_items($trackerId, $tr_offset, $max, $tr_sort_mode, $passfields, $filterfield, $filtervalue, $tr_status, $tr_initial, $exactvalue, $filter, $allfields); call does not work. Namely, $trklib->list_items(..) works with the resolved item links. Therefore, there is no match.

Solution

(1) `$trklib->list_items(..)` shall use the itemid references instead of the real value in my opinion. However, this must have a big impact.

(2) We could resolve the link too when processing the `field(..)` exactvalue parameter. This way the strange behavior of `$trklib->list_items(..)` can be satisfied. To do so, we may add

$field = $trklib->get_tracker_field($matches[2]);
    if ($field['type'] == 'r') {
        $refItemId = $trklib->get_item_id($field['options_array'][0], $field['options_array'][1], $l);
        $l = $trklib->get_item_value($field['options_array'][0], $refItemId,
$field['options_array'][3]);
    }

after the

$l = $trklib->get_item_value(0, $matches[4], $matches[2]);

line.
