Description

Hello,

Referring to 5.3, when the a selection of page have been made into listpages, after the access to a page there is no else way to go back to the list with is filters than re-run listpage and set again the filter, browse the list often to view and modify the following element.

This is a great lost of operating time.

i suggest, as for the structure, to implement a button which returns to the list and into at the previous position.

Programmatically this needs to :

1. - send to page-edit the parameter of the listpage we just have left
2. - by the button run again listpages with options :
 1. - filter
 2. - current position into the list

This problems is accurate because of the new category features.

when the access rights to a "family of pages" are not the same, the good way is not to use a structure (not designed for this indeed) which access by category is applied to all structure elements, but the category or element access by groups or both.

For my own I use structured categories to access lists of pages. This is the right use, but this list can't at this time be use to browse the selected list.
