Description
A lack of documentation on the correct usage of code in the Custom Site Header section may result in a broken site (blank white page)

For example, if one wanted to display a menu based on a users group but did not use the proper code (because he can't find documentation showing the proper code) there is a good chance the site could break.

It has happened to me a couple times but fortunately was able to go back or to another tab and remove the site breaking code and save again.
