Description

If you change the language via the switch language module it also changes the language of a multilingual structure to the same language, even though the option 'Changing the page language also changes the site language' is NOT set.

If you want to translate the page into another language it would be helpful to have those two separate and don't have to switch language for the menu, and then you have to switch the language of the structure again - thats one step too many if 'Changing the page language also changes the site language' is NOT set.
