Description

I have been having problems upgrading from previous versions and decided to install a new blank install of v7. Everything works fine until I try and log in with the admin user name and password I created during the install process. I receive a message that cookies need to be enabled. This is not a message that I have had before on any prior versions and cookies are definitely enabled in my browser. I have tried with Chrome, FireFox and IE and the problem is the same on v7. I have seen various discussions on this topic in the forums but it seems there is no resolution for this one and no clear answer as to what is causing it. My URL's have no ~ in them.
