Description

The WYSIWYG editor should have a button to create HTML comments that will only be visible in edit mode, and not in read mode.

As with all HTML, the comment tags should not be visible in WYSIWYG mode. The commented text should be a different color; perhaps grayed out.

This feature would enable editing discussion to happen right within the page being edited. Editors could more easily reference the text under discussion, since it would be right next to the comments. Discussing pages separately in the forum would no longer be needed, or would be optional.
