Description

in debug mode (eg. when debugging ldap logins) many log entries are created at the same time so sorting by time is not sufficient to get the entries in their real order. Sorting by ID is better then.

Unfortunately sorting by ID leads to an unexpected result.

Looking at the code the problem can be fixed easily: The problem is that two tables are being joined (actionlog and actionlog_conf) and sorting by ID leads to sorting by actionlog_conf.id instead of actionlog.actionID.

Both needs to be fixed - in the SQL query the table for sorting must be added in the sort statement, in the template the columnname must be changed from Id to ActionId.

See patch.

Solution

lib/logs/logslib.php

411c411 - $query .= " order by ".$this->convertSortMode($sort_mode); + $query .= " order by a ".$this->convertSortMode($sort_mode);

templates/tiki-syslog.tpl

30c30 - <th>{self_link_sort_arg="sort_mode" _sort_field="id"}{tr}Id{/tr}{/self_link}</th> +
<th>{self_link_sort_arg="sort_mode" _sort_field="actionId"}{tr}Id{/tr}{/self_link}</th>
