Description

Although the files are owned by the same user that runs the script the directory permissions do not get changed.

firedragonvbs@FiredragonVBS:~/public_html/cms/tiki-9.x$ sh setup.sh -u firedragonvbs -g firedragonvbs

You are not root or you are on a shared hosting account. You can now:

1- ctrl-c to break now.

or

2- If you press enter to continue, you will probably get some error messages but it (the script) will still fix what it can according to the permissions of your user. This script will now ask you some questions. If you don't know what to answer, just press enter to each question (to use default value)

> Press enter to continue:

Tiki Permission Check should solve that problem.
