Description

I would like to suggest that email protection be added by default to the email button when the icon is clicked. Right now the email address is embedded into the page in plain sight. I took a look at the JS protection applied to the email addresses listed in the user page, and it looks great. Can this same script be applied to the email addresses that are displayed through the email button?

I guess it would be a good idea to also have a way for people to opt out of the scrambling, just in case they wanted Search Engines, or bots of some kind to be able to index them....

Thanks

Brendan
