Description

When running

sh setup.sh

on a fresh install, it shows the following message:

«Composer: If you are installing via a released Tiki package (zip, tar.gz, tar.bz2, 7z), you can and should skip using Composer. If you are installing and upgrading via SVN, you need to run Composer after 'svn checkout' and 'svn upgrade'. More info at <https://dev.tiki.org/Composer>»

But the first default is always c (Composer). This is only correct when one installs from an svn checkout.

When installing from tar, zip or other archives, the first default value should be f (fix permissions)

Solution

Test for presence of a ".svn" directory.

If none, default value is 'f' (fix permissions)
