Description

The search engine friendly links do not appear for forum threads. You can use the SEF link to get there, and somewhere on the website the SEF form us used (based on a crawled index of links) but it is not present under the form thread list page, which is arguably the highest traffic page to access the threads from.

I have also looked at the RSS and the SEF links are not used for the forum in there as well. They use the standard tiki-view_forum_thread.php page with a URL passed argument.

Hoping someone can track down what went wrong. I have already searched through my .htaccess file to make sure I did not break it myself, but don't think the issue is there.

SEF links for the forums themselves appear to be functionally normally.
