Description

This is the case even if {if $tracker_info.showStatus eq 'y' or ($tracker_info.showStatusAdminOnly eq 'y' and $tiki_p_admin in_trackers eq 'y')}} is true.

In order to fix this I can think of 2 options:

option 1) have the status selector there in the edit/insert popup.

option 2) have on the tracker item view screen another button to toggle the status, depending on the perms the user has. Surely the user should only be able to change the status to statuses he has perms to view, right?

I actually like option 2 as it provides a separate tracker status switcher apart from the editing but that's just my opinion.

Workaround

If you turn the feature "User legacy tracker insertion screen" in Admin... Trackers, you will get back the old version, which works fine to change status.
