Description

I'm new to tiki and just installed tiki 13.1 on my server. After a fresh and what seemed to be a standard install I had a blank page displayed when trying to reach the main administration page : tiki-admin.php. No error message, just a blank page. And some other admin pages where reachable. (tiki-adminusers.php for instance)

It turned out in the Apache logs that a php function, `iconv_get_encoding()`, used in Zend framework was called but undefined, leading to a fatal error. And it turned out that a php dynamic extension, `iconv`, was not loaded in the `php.ini`

It seems to me that it should be checked during the install, or at least be part of the Tiki server compatibility check and should be mentioned here : <http://doc.tiki.org/Requirements>

Thank you very much.

p.s : I wrote a post on the forums about it, but it seemed appropriate to send a message here too. Keep up the good work.

I can add it in the tiki-check script. Can you add it to the Requirements wiki page?
