Description
Even for themes with no theme option, the option selector is being displayed, with every theme option (of all themes with options) listed. Selecting an option doesn't do anything, but it's a regression for the selector to even display for no-option themes.

Solution
The problem was caused by a JavaScript conflict apparently, due to Google Analytics end-of-body code in the Look and Feel Customization section. When I removed that, several js-related problems at the site went away. Thanks to gezza for some nudges in the right direction.
