Description

User cannot access their profile by clicking on their name (above logout). Admin ca.

Problem: The username itself is shown, but no clickable link is created.

Thus they cannot change their password or their email.

Showinstance:

admin / 12345 : name above login allows to access profile

Donald / 12345: name above login does NOT allow to access profile

Donald Duck / 12345: name above login does NOT allow to access profile

Workaround

The expected behaviour for a user is to get access to his own profile, also when that info is not public or feature friends is not set.

So fixed in 54896

It is no bug but a feature. The user must make their profile information public - then it changes to clickable link. But I agree it could be ignored when user viewing self.

Wolfgang, you can see the settings for such basic things (out of the complexity of tiki control panels) in the Configuration Wizard, at the screen about Community.

Thx for your comments and tips on irc.

I think the expected behaviour for a user is to get access to his own profile, also when that info is not public or feature friends is not set.
