Description

My client wrote about typing text in Wysiwyg:

Mark wrote:

When I am typing, every so often the system stops responding for a couple of seconds so that the letters that are being typed are skipped. I've tested it on an Apple and Windows machine, both using Firefox and it is the same. So I think it is the tiki or the server? It is very annoying and the team will lose patience with it if this happens to them when they are typing. It happens about one or two time a minute, I would guess. Sometimes more. It happens anywhere on the tiki site. It does not appear to happen in the firefox browser. This morning, Friday 10/9/15, the droppe letters seems to be much more frequent. Every 10 seconds maybe. VERY annoying.

In Firebug console I can see every several seconds (maybe half a minute?) the POST to tiki-autosave-save causes this. Could it be fixed so, that this does on a DOM copy of the text and thus does not prevent typing more text while the call is made (or something like that)?

Thanks,

luci

I cannot reproduce this with trunk r65130. Can you reproduce with a current version?

This looks like a duplicate of ticket #5495.
